

Protecting tourist paradises - Sardinia

Every year huge numbers of loggerhead sea turtles mistake the waste thrown into the sea by man for food. They eat it and die. Marine biologist, Massimo Ponti, talks about a successful protecting programme in Italy covering some 184,000 hectares of sea and 580 kilometres of coast

Article link:

<https://www.tourism-review.com/protecting-tourist-paradises-sardinia-news10184>

ia-news10184